Easter Eggs, Easter Bunnies, Hot Cross Buns or death?

Which will you focus on this weekend?

Weird way to start this week’s newsletter.......I agree!

Easter has unfortunately, like so many other Christian celebrations, been high jacked by the world of consumerism. What was once a celebration of grace, life and hope has turned into chocolate eggs, hot cross buns and anything else that might generate a sale. But the true meaning of Easter, the celebration of Easter is far bigger than we can possibly imagine.

For many, the story of the bible is about Christmas, a seeming illegitimate child born to an innocent couple who had not known each other, forced to carry the burden of a child in a country where sniggers and mockery would have been common.

This child, born in a backyard stable and raised as a carpenter, became a teacher of renown. This would have been interesting but while the Christmas story is significant it is only half of the story, for without the conclusion, the climax, it simply would have been a remarkable account.

So what makes Easter so special? Why is it celebrated by so many? Why is it significant in His-story?

The answer lies in our School’s name, GRACE.

God’s unmerited favour, God’s goodness, kindness, care and love for us, Favour we do not deserve.

There is nothing we have done or can do to earn His favour. No good deed, no gift, nothing we can do to make us right in God’s eyes. It is all a gift from God. Grace is divine assistance offered to us all. It is God’s way of restoring what we messed up.

Grace can be seen a little clearer in this acronym: GOD’RACHEXP

It is by grace you were saved through faith, and not of yourself. (Paraphrase of Ephesians 2:8.)

So exactly what is the second part of the story?

Easter - Christ died, Christ rose.

The mockery, the incredible pain, the tears, the sweat, the cross, the crown of thorns, the blood-shed, the death, the separation from the eternal love of His Father, all for your sake, all for my sake.

There is nothing we need to do; he bore it all for us. He wore our garment of sin so we might wear His garment of righteousness and then....................He rose so that we might have hope, have life. All you need do is respond. In order for Christ’s cross to be yours all you need do is accept Him.

Let’s make Easter about its real purpose, for chocolate, while sweet for a moment, holds nothing against God’s love which is sweet for eternity.

“But God demonstrates His own love for us in this: While we were still sinners, Christ died for us.” Romans 5:8 (NIV)

The Easter Message by Abbey Cederman (Year 1)

Jesus died on the cross for our sins. On Easter Sunday Jesus rose from the dead. A girl named Mary who was Jesus’ friend went to the tomb and when she looked in the tomb there was no body in the tomb. Mary ran and ran and she went to tell every one. She turned around and Jesus was behind her. Jesus said “Mary, go spread the good news”.

Have Sum Fun!

Congratulations to our brilliant Mathematicians!

Grace Christian School entered two primary teams in the Bunbury “Have Sum Fun” Competition, run by the Mathematical Association of WA, last Saturday and won! Team 2 took out first place, and Team 1 came 4th after a tiebreaker for 3rd. Each team comprised 2 students from Year 5, 2 from Year 6 and 2 from Year 7 who calculated with all their might to solve 8 mind bending problems in each of 4 rounds.

Here’s an example you can try:

A cone is cut on a diagonal as shown. Will the section be an egg shape with the wider end at top or an egg shape with the wider end at the bottom?

Young Writers do Grace Proud

Once again Grace students proved themselves at the Young Writers Course. No fewer than five students read their work aloud and Keaton Staszewski-Hose was asked to give the closing thank you at the end of the afternoon on behalf of all attendees. This term, one of Australia’s most acclaimed young adults’ authors, James Moloney (author of Bridge to Wiseman’s Cove) presented his tips for young writers. As the author of more than forty published titles, he led the students through a series of exercises aimed at thinking through and tightening their plot outlines.

Included below is an excerpt written by Cameron Fleming in response to an exercise in creating a setting with an emphasis on “show, don’t tell” and withholding information to “tease” the reader into reading further:

“So, here we are.” Apple’s voice echoed through the courtyard, a sound that was shot back eerily, it was cold, chillingly cold. The three travellers shivered; their cloaks and woollen tunics refused to trap body heat. The smell of death hung in the air.

Shadows danced around the courtyard, disappearing almost as instantly as they arrived, deceiving one to think it was a trick of the light. Black banners waved on the parapets, yet there was no wind to drive them. A high pitched scream pierced the air.

“What was that?” whispered Roderick hoarsely. Nothing was moving naturally. Nothing felt natural about the grey, dull castle. Nothing lived. There was no evidence that anything had lived there, no dead bodies, no carcasses to explain the grasping, abhorrent stench. But then they saw it.

Secondary Camps

Year 9 Camp 2013

A review by Chloe Douch

This year the Year 9 students went to Camp Grace in Busselton for their camp. Thanks to the hard work and effort put in by the teachers to plan the camp, it turned out to be a great success. We started off waiting for the bus, which was delayed a bit, but that didn’t matter because the delay gave us more time to get to know YWAMers, Jason, Nate and Sarah. When the bus arrived, we set off for Busselton Jetty where we were made to walk it. And, in the stinking heat and being the only one in your group smart enough to bring a back pack- which everyone soon filled with their water bottles and stuff- it was soon pretty exhausting work. But we all made it to the end dry (well actually, we were all dripping with sweat), with only one person wet because their hat ‘fell’ into the water. There was a gift shop at the end that had refrigerated air-conditioning, hallelujah! And hopefully the tourists weren’t too annoyed at us for hogging the few air conditioning vents. After the walk we sat down and ate our lunch and a few of us managed to convince Mr Ryder that the contents of our water bottles would be more beneficial if they were poured on our heads instead of in our mouths.

After lunch we headed to the camp site where we were assigned our dorms and for the few of us that were lucky enough (like me) our caravans which were complete with a fridge, televisions and fans; it was luxurious! Then we headed to the beach for some fun canoeing, which was surprisingly easy to learn and actually really fun! Mr Pete Cohen was our instructor and we were divided into 7 groups and completed a series of relays in the canoes. The best of which was when we had to split our teams, half at each end of the course, and then try to fit every member onto the canoe without sinking it. My team, Team 2, totally dominated at that and we managed to get all 8 members onto the canoe before capsizing it. After that we were pretty worn out and had free time until dinner. We started a pretty good game of cricket and I think the ball was over the fence of the neighbouring camp site half the time. After dinner we had team games on the beach led by Pete and played a few epic games of ‘Capture the Flag’.

The next morning we had to wake up bright and early, literally like 6am - and after an interrupted sleep by the possums living in the tree above, we were all pretty knackered. We all survived though, and for some of us the lack of sleep was soon caught up on the drive to Yallingup Maze. We were split up into groups and were sent into the maze, 5 groups at a time, to race and see who could get through the maze the quickest. The best time was about 3 minutes and the slowest about 42 minutes. After a few rounds we were given free time until it was time to leave. We played a hilarious game of ‘Articulate’ and helped a few little kids around the wooden obstacle course thingy.

Then we headed to Ngilgi Cave where Mr McCafferty was absolutely drenched by Jasmine and Kelly, who emptied a 2 litre water bottle onto his back. We were then split into groups and went down into the cave. We explored the cave, mainly sticking to the path but where there was a tunnel we could crawl through, we did. In the tunnel we all commando-style crawled through it and the person at the front thought it was funny to block the entrance and left us all cramped in the tunnel until he decided to move. And since we commando-crawled in there, I had kinda smelt a bit. There were many interesting shapes in the cave formed by stalagmites and stalactites; some of which looked like Star Wars characters and there was one that looked like Albus Dumble-dore! The tour guide guy got us to lie down at one stage and we had question time and apparently the stalactites would only fall down if you sung Justin Bieber or One Direction. After that we headed back to camp and had free time until dinner which we filled with mostly swimming. There were huge swarms of jellyfish and a few of us managed to con Vince Mr Ryder that the contents of our water bottles would be more beneficial if they were poured on our heads instead of in our mouths.

Our team was ironically dubbed ‘A bunch of losers’ and we ended up winning after a few amazing flukes! Pastor Dale led us in devotions that night and they were really good. On the trip home many of us fell asleep, me included and I was woken up by someone pouring water on me to find a dead bat in my face! All in all, I thought the camp was a great experience and the food was excellent (which was good because camp food is usually bad!)

Matthew 27:50-53

And when Jesus had cried out again in a loud voice, he gave up his spirit. At that moment the curtain of the temple was torn in two from top to bottom. The earth shook and the rocks split. The tombs broke open and the bodies of many holy people who had died were raised to life. They came out of the tombs, and after Jesus’ resurrection they went into the holy city and appeared to many people. (NIV)

- In the past 12 months Australians bought 1.28 billion litres of sugary drinks – that is over 50 000 Olympic sized swimming pools.
- Australia ranked among the top 10 countries for per capita consumption of soft drinks

Matthew 26:26-28

As they were eating, Jesus took some bread and blessed it. Then he broke it in pieces and gave it to the disciples, saying, “Take this and eat it, for this is my body.” And he took a cup of wine and gave thanks to God for it. He gave it to them and said, “Each of you drink from it, for this is my blood, which confirms the covenant between God and his people. It is poured out as a sacrifice to forgive the sins of many.”
